

Behind the Headlines

Annotated Front Page

▼ Skyline

This panel helps to market the paper by highlighting other stories in the paper.

Pe
Tatchell
'I've made people very angry'

► Masthead

A specially designed logo showing the name of the newspaper.

G2

▼ Date and price

Costs of the paper are covered by a combination of the cover price and ads.

Monday
31 October 2022
£2.50
From £1.85 for subscribers

It was chaos. I couldn't Horror as 153 die in Se

The Guardian
News provider of the year

Ministers accused of 'wild west' attitude to UK's national security

Allegation Truss's personal phone was hacked adds to concern over cabinet culture

Standfirst
Peter Dan S Pippa

Used to add detail that was not included in the headline.

Minist conditions in matters of national security by the increased use of personal email and phones to conduct confidential business, intelligence experts and former officials say.

After a week tainted by a row over the use of a personal email account yesterday that was allegedly hacked, Suella Braverman's position as home secretary - Rishi Sunak restored her to the job after Truss sacked her over the data breach - is seen as vulnerable, given separate claims that she

▲ Headline

The biggest headline on the page is called the "main splash". Headlines are written by subeditors.

out people
rable condi-
tum centre

said there would go o f
c b

The home secretary was sacked by Truss for using a personal email to send a confidential government document on immigration policy to a backbench Tory MP, John Hayes, a mentor and close ideological ally.

Body Text

The main text of a news story by a reporter.

Mail on Sunday that these chats were potentially read by Russian agents, the levelling

Picture

The main picture will work with the headline and fill all of the space.

Lula beats Bolsonaro in stunning comeback

Tom Phillips
São Paulo

Brazil's former leftist president, Luiz Inácio Lula da Silva, has sealed an astonishing political comeback, beating the far-right incumbent Jair Bolsonaro in one of the most significant and bruising elections in the country's history.

With 99% of votes counted last night, Lula, a former factory worker who became Brazil's first working-class president exactly 20 years ago, had secured 50.8% of the vote. Bolsonaro, a firebrand who was elected in 2018, received 49.1%.

On Paulista Avenue, one of the São Paulo's main arteries, ecstatic Lula supporters gathered to celebrate his victory and the downfall of a radical rightwing president whose presidency produced an environmental tragedy and saw nearly 700,000 Brazilians die of Covid.

"Our dream is coming

BBC local radio under threat from huge cuts

Exclusive
Jim Waterson
Matthew Weaver

▲ Byline

The name of the writer(s). Sometimes their job title or location is included.

truly distinctive standalone outlets.

Plans under consideration include cutting the number of weekday shows on each BBC local radio station to two, leaving just a breakfast show and a lunchtime programme.

Output during the afternoons and evenings would consist of shows broadcast on multiple local stations across large swathes of the UK, or even nationally.

Weekend output, with the exception of sports coverage, would also be largely run on a regional basis - spelling the end for many of the unique shows now airing on local stations.

Although the BBC has trumpeted the success of its 39 local radio stations as being at

▲ Edition Dots

We print up to three different editions per night. One dot means this is the first edition. During elections and special events, we might print up to five editions.

Turn ▲

Often front page stories continue elsewhere in the paper.