

Ice age tools discovered in hillside dig

UCL Archaeology South-East/PA

A giant handaxe that is thousands of years old was found by archaeologists during a dig in Kent last week.

The handaxe was part of a collection of over 800 tools found.

News
WISE

VR headsets let more people see Royal Ballet

Christopher Thomond/The Guardian

The Royal Ballet has launched a 'virtual stage' for people who cannot get to theatres.

VR headsets are used so that people can still enjoy their favourite ballet performances.

News
WISE

Solar panels put onto 600 year old college

Sarah Lee/The Guardian

Over 400 solar panels are being installed on the roof of King's College in Cambridge on Tuesday.

Some do not agree with the decision, but the head of the college thinks it will help to fight climate change.

News
WISE

Pet alligator not allowed into baseball game

Heather Khalifa/AP

An alligator and his owner were told that they could not enter a baseball game on Wednesday night.

The 1.5 metre long alligator is called Wally, and he is an emotional support animal for his owner Joe.

News
WISE