There's one thing the people of Paris cannot agree on.

E-scooters have been in the French capital for years, but that will change soon.

Residents of Paris have voted to ban e-scooters from their streets today.

Those who voted for the ban had plenty of complaints. Many people have been injured by the scooters, and the vehicles are often dumped in the river.

Other voters disagree. They think the scooters are a good way to travel when the buses and metros are not working well.

A teacher, Suzon Lambert, told reporters that she is scared of them.

Another resident said that they feel the ban is unfair and pointed out that the scooters are good for the environment.
